Ian Hunter

Strings Attached (MIG)

Ian Hunter has never given up. He came on the scene as the frontman for Mott the Hoople, one of the greatest British rock bands ever, and continued with a very successful solo career.

Historically, Hunter's writing has ping-ponged between the hard driving and the emotionally naked. He's not one to shy away from what moves him ... and we've benefited from that approach for more than 40 years.

'Strings Attached' is a live album recorded in Oslo back in 2002. Augmented with a mostly acoustic band and large string section, Hunter strips it all away and reveals the heart that he's always worn on his sleeve. Found here is a nice mix of tracks from his career ... both Mott and solo.

This recording is a wonderful document that not only showcases Hunter as a tremendous songwriter, but also displays his work in a new light. That, my friends, is a gift.
