Ian Hunter Band featuring Mick Ronson: Live at Rockpalast (MIG DVD, 74 min.). This concert DVD was recorded April 19 and 20, 1980 during performances on the German TV show. Ronson, who also gained fame by playing with David Bowie, opens the show with the instrumental "FBI. Hunter had led Mott the Hoople and they perform that band's hits "Angeline," "All the Way from Memphis," "I Wish I Were Your Mother" and "All the Young Dudes" (which Bowie wrote for the band). From Hunter's solo career come "Once Bitten Twice Shy" and "Cleveland Rocks." There even is a cover of Sonny Bono's "Laugh at Me." Hunter plays piano on "Irene Wilde" (the love story of a 16-year-old girl) and the rocker "Just Another Night" (about spending night in an Indianapolis jail). They also perform the then-new rocker "We Gotta Get Out of Here." Grade: A-
