Dwarves' HeWhoCanNotBeNamed Debut Solo Record Coming in June

by Howard Wyman

Via [AntiMusic] Ah, the Dwarves. Where would we be without them? Probably the same place we're at now, but with fewer and less gnarly stains on our oldest, rattiest t-shirts, perhaps. At any rate, Dwarves' masked guitarist HeWhoCanNotBeNamed—you know, the one who got the band booted from Sub Pop back in '93 for faking his own death—is goin' solo, as they say, and he's got his debut solo LP coming out this June, entitled Sunday School Massacre.

It's ironic that, after something like a quarter century of making music, he is only now attempting to "make a name for himself." All songs are written by Mr. HeWho, and are performed by the guitarist along with a healthy round-up of other Dwarves-related figures, including Dwarves singer Blag Dahlia, occasional Dwarves/current KMFDM drummer Andy Selway (or Dutch Ovens, as he's known in the Dwarves), and bassist Nick Oliveri, also known for his work with Queens of the Stone Age. Track list is reportedly as follows:

- * Happy Suicide
- * Machine Boy
- * Medication
- * Superhero
- * Duct Tape Love
- * Hate Song
- * Toxine
- * Sinister Sal
- * Wake Up
- * Daddy is Dead
- * Billy Vs. The Gnomes
- * Motorboating

Below is a live clip of HeWhoCanNotBeNamed playing solo material in San Francisco on this past Valentine's Day. The song "Duct Tape Love", as you may have noticed, is slated for inclusion on the debut LP.
