Punk-by-numbers stuff from the Dwarves guitarist

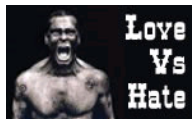

Perhaps Dwarves guitarist Hewhocannotbenamed's most notorious moment came when his death, supposedly in a bar brawl, was announced by the band. Though they admitted to the hoax quite quickly, the music press had a total sense of humour failure about the whole thing (who would've thought a bunch of scuzz punks might do something slightly shocking to promote their new record?) and Hewho (as he's known to me) was marked as a porky-pier, pants-on-fire liar for all time. His claims in the accompanying biog to this disc that he was a counsellor and teacher of mentally-ill and abused kids, therefore, is surely a joke. C'mon, Hewho; a moral vacuum / poor man's GG Allin such as yourself would surely have beaten and raped the kids, sold their toys for smack and fingered their mums - teacher my ass... Whatever transpired, I'm at least 30% certain that what we have here is a 12-track punk'n'roll record which features such ex-Dwarves colleagues and collaborators as Nick "QOTSA" Oliveri and Blag Dahlia, is musically kind of a watered-down version of the Dwarves (no surprise there) and has tongue firmly wedged into cheek for the duration. Hewho's vocals strongly suggest his talents are best reserved for the guitar, but it's all good dirty fun nonetheless. A teacher - I asks ya...
