FART: The Movie

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 2, 2010 AT 10:10PM

A movie that lives up to its name! should have known by the title that this movie would probably suck, but being a fan of B-Movies, I decided to give it a shot. FART - The Movie is a cult classic film, that was released in the early 90's and has just been released on DVD. I'm not sure who thought this was a classic, or why it warranted a release on DVD, but now it is out there for the public to consume.

FART is about a guy named Russell who has two loves in his life: Farting and his girlfriend Heather. Man, this dude has issues. The film centers around Russell and his constant need to fart. Heather does not like the farting but supposedly puts up with it, because she loves this douche bag. She is constantly opening windows and spraying air freshener to cleanse their home. Long story short, one night Heather goes to a party while Russell dreams of a world where everyone on TV farts. Stupid, I know.

I still can't figure out why I wasted 90 minutes on this piece of shit. I'm one of those guys that keeps hoping it will get better, but unfortunately for FART, it got progressively worse. The only thing that would make this movie worth watching, is if you made a drinking game out of it. Mercifully, you would probably be passed out after about 20 minutes.

Bottom Line: One of the worst flicks I have seen in sometime.

- Ragman has to take a FART: The Movie shit now
