Rating: 5 stars!

After reviewing 2 bad quality horror flicks I get to finally review a good quality b-movie that's actually funny, interesting & quit enjoyable!

HORNO is a funny horror flick that's basically a "Horror Porno". It's a movie inside of a movie because the premise is that a porn director wants to make a horror porn movie but what happens is his movie becomes real life.

The Zombie outbreak kills most of the people in this movie & the movie's main "male porn star" is a funny guy who pretend to be "straight" while he openly admits he did gay porn & can't get hard when he's with women.

There's a giant fake penis that's displayed alot in the movie..it makes the fake prick in Boogie Nights look tiny!

The acting is hit or miss at times, but the theme, the visuals, the audio, the video, even the plot...it's all kinds o' disgusting, it's goofy b-movie crap & it's a fun watch from start to finish if you remember that you're watching a b-movie, it is what it is & it's meant to be slightly goofy!

I think each actor in this movie tries to be really over the top & out there...that's what makes the movie fun too, the lack of stars is not detectable simply because the actors give it their all & they make the movie fun!

This is a fun movie, if you like crazy Horror flicks filmed on a low budget then you'll dig this....I might add too that there's no major over-the-top nude scenes either, which is odd considering this is supposed to be a "horror porn". The only real nudity you see is a huge fake penis!
