I feel I should say something good about the film, because it's obviously something the cast and crew put a lot of work into. The production values are solid, especially for a low budget film. Composer Douglas Edward puts a great deal of gothic fun into his score, which helps...a bit. And did I mention the title is really awesome?

My Stepdad's a Freakin' Vampire! gets a decent DVD release. The standard definition 2.35:1 anamorphic widescreen transfer is crisp and strong, even the darker scenes. The Dolby 2.0 stereo mix is well-balanced, with music and dialogue coming through loud and clear. For extras, we get a commentary track with Edward and a blooper reel.

This might have looked good on paper, but the film fails to reach its horror-comedy potential.

The Verdict

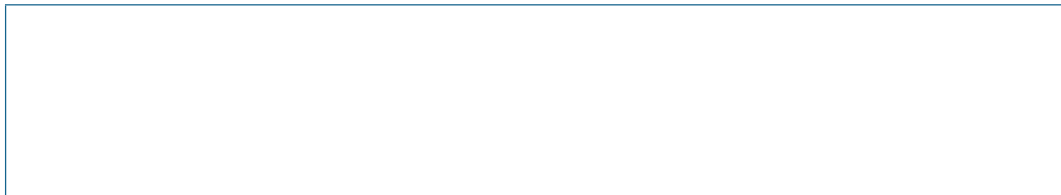

More guilty than I hoped. Stake 'em!
