

Planet of the Vampires

This movie was made in the 1960s and it's pretty much the blueprint for sexy. Like I really think sexy may not have existed before this movie. There may have been alluring or attractive, but this was the sex bomb. Behold!

Look at those collars! I know some douchebags who wish they could pop a collar like that. Clearly the Planet of the Vampires was pretty boss. Maybe even dope. I dunno, what did they say in the 1960s? Far out? Groovy? Lame as shit? Whatever.

Planet of the Vampire Women

In a strange twist of crap, this movie was made in 2011 and looks like it may have had a lower budget than the 1960s vampire planet movie. It's possible the people in this movie were just working for snacks. They made it campy on purpose though which is really your only option when your end product is going to look kind of like ass, so at least it has that level of self awareness. Plus some of those chicks are kinda hot. Hot chicks love it when you say that. Call me.

I like to think there's a scene in which someone asks a vampire woman to keep her hands off and calls her a damn, dirty vampire woman, but you never know.

Planet of Prehistoric Women

In a just world, this would be a movie about an astronaut landing on planet Boobula and discovering that's people with women who need to be sexed up and there are no men even though that doesn't make sense and there are fried chicken trees and maybe a beer fountain. Is that sexist? Eat shit, they don't have sexism on this planet.

I have a hell of a time finding a good clip of this movie, but then it occurred to me probably none exist because probably the whole movie looks like this;

So it's a whole planet of bleach blonde chicks who look upset that they have to poop or something. Whatever. And there's a bird.

Planet of Dinosaurs

I could embed this whole friggin movie right here if I wanted, but then you would never trust another video clip I embedded ever again. The audio in the first 60 seconds is so terrible I had to stop it. But don't let that ruin your good opinion of a planet ruled by dinosaurs. Just think if Mars was full of raptors, being the only dinosaur anyone cares about since 1993. In fact, just look at this!

That's the condensed version of the movie and for my money, that's a dino planet I could get into. Look at the some of