Planet of the Vampire Women (2011)

Director: Darin Wood

Where to get it: MVD

After pulling off the heist of the century, notorious space pirate Trix Richards and her gang of interplanetary outlaws attempt a daring getaway in an antique warship. The mercenaries blaze through the galaxy with the law on their tail, seeking refuge on a long-forgotten sinister moon. But when the ship crashes into the storm-shrouded orb, they find themselves stranded in a nightmare world of unrelenting terror, with a scout missing and a fatally wounded leader.

So we are in a galaxy that is far far away, but perhaps not far enough in this sci-fi T and A show. People are robbing people, women are vampires, and other people are half cyborg. But all you will probably remember after seeing this is the women running around topless and half naked. And that is perfectly fine, that's what they are going for, they WANT you to keep your eyes glued to the women in the film. Anything that will keep you from paying any attention to anything else that is going down in this movie, because the rest is a little lacking. You are dealing with a rather simple plot, unmemorable characters, and budget and style that would fit porn. But I am sad to report in the middle of all the naked women, it's still just an R and not porn...Dang it!

But we aren't total a-holes here at Zombies Don't Run! We will find something good about this film, outside the obvious. And I can say that the blood is at least done right. I just wish we had a solid method to the madness. The blood does fly in some very cool and gruesome ways, but just a bit uninteresting in between these moments. The corny and cheesy space shots are amusing and a bit funny. That's probably not what anyone involved in this movie is going for. And even with the running time for this film being about what you'd expect for a film, it still drags a lot in more than one spot. It helps to have a reason to pay attention and care about a film outside the random nudity and blood splatter and this movie just doesn't give you any other reason at all

(4.5/10)
