

- Home
- News
- Articles
- Reviews
- Blog
- Issues
- About
- Activism
- Contact

Navigate to... ▾

Home » Album reviews, New release

dUg Pinnick: Na

By Troy Michael

April 29, 2013 – 5:11 pm

0 Comments | 62 views

3

Like

2

Tweet

0

✉

📄

dUg Pinnick

Naked (RockArmy)

Legendary bassist and frontman of King’s X dUg Pinnick returns once again with a solo album simply and appropriately entitled Naked.

With the heaviness of a Tony Iommi riff, the album blows you back immediately with head bobbing funk of “What You Gonna Do.” Taking a drastic turn, at least musically, “If U Fuk It Up” is a soul searching song overflowing with emotions, a style Pinnick is known for, but never to this extent. “Courage” is a scattered song with chest thumping bass lines mixed with Soundgarden sludge and Beatles psychedelia.

The synchronization of these songs is an interesting lineup, as no two songs sound the same back to back, yet they do incorporate the heaviness and funk Pinnick is known for.

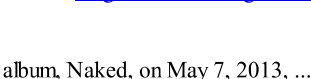

Case in point, you have the funky jam of “That Great Big Thing,” the mellow LSD trip of “The Point,” then the teeth rattling low end on “Take Me Away From You,” all in order...and it all fits.

Naked is one of Pinnick’s finest efforts in his 30-plus-year career. Mixing his iconic sound with the ’60s rock and modern heavy metal, he has done something musicians rarely do. Naked is animalistic, Naked is fearless, Naked is meant to be played loud.

Related Posts:

dUg Pinnick of King's X To Release Solo Album 'Naked' on May 7 dUg Pinnick, frontman for legendary hard rock trio King's X, releases his latest solo

King's X Frontman dUg Pinnick Releases Video for 'What You Gonna Do' Off Forthcoming Solo album 'Naked'