Main Plot Points:

- Jug Face tells the story of a pregnant teen trying to escape a backwoods community when she discovers that she may be sacrificed to a creature in a pit. The entity in the pit requires a sacrifice for keeping the community safe. The face of the person to be sacrificed is crafted onto a ceramic jug.
- When ignored, the entity unleashes an evil onto the community. Now no one is safe as tragedy befalls each member one by one and they soon realize that the pit wants what it wants.

What We Thought:

- I heard a lot of good buzz about Jug Face and I gotta say, I liked it.
- I don't know if I fully "got it," but it's definitely a film I'll rewatch. It's odd, really kind of messed up, dark, weird, but very original.

- There's a lot of hillbilly/backwoods horror films out there and this is one of the better ones.
- I think the biggest positive is actress Lauren Ashley Carter. She's very good in this. Even in tattered, beat up clothing, she's pretty without being typical Hollywood pretty. She gives a great performance and you root for her character despite some questionable acts with a family member. I expect some good things in the future for her.

- I liked the look of the film too. It was gritty and very backwoods. It was really well shot and you felt like you were there in the woods with the pit.
- I'm really not sure what other movies I can compare Jug Face to. I don't think I've seen anything quite like it. I'll definitely be recommending it to friends though. Plus the special features has a really cool short in it too.
