THE PLOT

Jug Face tells the story of a pregnant teen trying to escape a backwoods community when she discovers that she may be sacrificed to a creature in a pit. The entity in the pit requires a sacrifice for keeping the community safe. The face of the person to be sacrificed is crafted onto a ceramic jug. When ignored, the entity unleashes an evil onto the community. Now no one is safe as tragedy befalls each member one by one and they soon realize that the pit wants what it wants.

Jug Head has been getting some love from horror reviewers and I do see why. The film seems like a very cool concept and it also has some nice acting to make things even better. The movie packs some weird cult/religious elements, incest, and other creepy things. It also wraps all those things up in a super natural package. There isn't a ton of horror type things going on, but the movie packs some thrills and when there is gore it tends to make it count for the most part.

Our main character, Ada, doesn't seem like the most normal girl in the world, but how could she be growing up in a group that sacrifices one of their own based off visions the "slow" man in town has that has him make jugs of people who are to be sacrificed. She gets into a jam and she ends up causing a chain of events that pretty much messes up everyone's day. There is drama, there is tense situations, and at the end of the day the acting is soo good it makes you care just enough to enjoy the film overall.
