

There's No Place Like Utopia

A Joel Gilbert Film

Los Angeles, CA — May 5, 2014 — Highway 61 Entertainment (highway61ent.com) is pleased to announce its new film for theatrical release this summer entitled There's No Place Like Utopia (theresnoplacelikeutopia.com) - a provocative and entertaining film about the roots and reality of Progressivism in America. Similar in style to the highly successful Michael Moore films, acclaimed director and filmmaker Joel Gilbert takes audiences on a horrifying and humorous journey of discovery across the USA.

Gilbert travels across America to find out what's at the end of the Progressive rainbow - Utopia or something far worse? From the ruins of Detroit to the slums of Chicago's South Side, and from Denver's illegal immigration invasion to Newark's urban removal project, Gilbert pulls back the curtain. His quest takes us deep into the roots of the political fantasy of Utopia, as he confronts Progressives about their plans for paradise on earth. Gilbert also interviews Jack Cashill, David Horowitz, Jerome Corsi and a leading ex-KGB officer about the realities of Socialism and Marxism. In this film audiences will learn about:

- Why Barack Obama is the real life 'Wizard of Oz' – a charlatan full of empty promises
- The 'vast left wing conspiracy' in America today
- The roots of the Progressive agenda for Utopia on earth
- Why Chicago and Newark are becoming the new 'Detroits'
- Why Peggy Joseph, the 2008 voter who said Obama would "pay for her mortgage," DOES NOT support him today
- How political correctness is silencing American free speech
- Why Amnesty for illegals is bad for the Black community.
- Why the Democrat party wants Americans dependent on government
- How Islam is expanding into Detroit and other cities devastated by Progressive policies

There's No Place Like Utopia is an exploration of Progressivism, amnesty for illegals, race relations, Islam in America, political correctness, and Barack Obama himself, who promises to "remake the world as it should be." But is Utopia a real destination for America? Or, does the true path to happiness still remain back home in Kansas via faith, family and hard work.

After a successful launch in Denver, There's No Place Like Utopia will premiere at the Edwards and AMC in Houston and Cinemark in The Woodlands on August 29th, then expand to a nationwide release. Rocky Mountain Pictures, the distributors behind the successful theatrical run of 2016: Obama's America, is distributing this film to theaters.
