WEINER (IFC Films)

You've got to wonder what in the hell Anthony Weiner was thinking when he agreed to let a documentary film crew follow him around as he tried to redeem his reputation and run for the mayor of New York...

then again, a lot of Weiner's decisions have been met with the question, "what in the hell was he thinking?". The eponymous film takes an unflinching look at Weiner's sexting past as he tries to prove it was a one-off mistake and that he's the right person to fight for New Yorkers. The only person you really feel sorry for is his wife, Huma Abedin, who is clearly uncomfortable being asked to act as her husband's surrogate on the campaign trail. Easily one of the most entertaining political docs in years, Weiner is honest, compelling and just as big a train wreck as you'd expect.

THE AFFAIR – SEASON TWO (CBS Video)

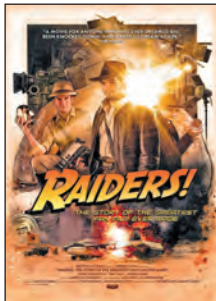

Season two of the surprise Showtime hit, The Affair, continues to be just as consistently satisfying as the first go round. Fresh of its Golden Globe win for best TV drama, the show picks up with writer Noah (Dominick West) back at his home in New York, to pick up his things after having destroyed his marriage. The second season spends more time focusing on the other characters affected by the infidelity, like Noah's wife, Helen (Maura Tierney) and the husband of the woman Noah had his affair with. The investigation into the death of Cole is still a major theme, but the drama around the affair and its aftermath is just as interesting.

RAIDERS!: THE STORY OF THE GREATEST FAN FILM EVER MADE (MVD)

This documentary about a group of Mississippi kids who set out to make a scene-by-scene remake of Raiders of the Lost Ark is far more interesting that one can imagine. Picking up decades after the kids (all around 11 at the time of their first shoot began), the guys and one girl are all now grownups with adult commitments like jobs and children of their own, but have come together to film the only scene they never got around to finishing: a special effects-packed shoot featuring a plane exploding on screen. Told via interviews, old footage of their movie and present-day filming, Raiders! is a love letter to movies, Steven Spielberg and the extraordinary imagination and devotion of kids.
