"Plastic Crimewave Sound- no woderland"

Plastic Crimewave Sound
no wonderland
prophase music

Drone stroke psych drawing heavily from the hidden full on "next" wave of psychedelia; the stuff that started with David Thomas' statement that, "Pere Ubu are the second wave of psychedelia" which reached its bad-acid apex with the post no-wave fallout from the NY Noise thing- ie. Sonic Youth and The Swans, and fed heavily from nascent "space rock". The mind warp of Pink Floyd in '67, Hawkwind in '70 and Chrome in '77 are antecedents' as is the mind melting Krautrock of Amon Duul, Guru Guru Can, etc., which flowed between then. Joy Division and Throbbing Gristle seem to be in the diet too, - that's good news, adding heavy doom and industrial whirl much like their modern peers from the corroded waves-of-silt art-metal side; Minsk. I wouldn't count out the '90's alt.-rock of Hovercraft and Sky Cries Mary and the abstract side of The Orb and those further out bending and glitching synthesizers and all sorts of effects, software tech. either,; or their veering into stabs of ur-ug-drug-punk. Being a big fan of the ur-ug-drug-punk genre I support this wholesome behavior; as should you.

Thudding shuddering slabs of menacing "tribal" drumming rooted in all-the-above given flight by enough air and light to call in the next strafing lands no wonderland as much in line with the subtle-as-a bush-hog-hittin'-a-stump rough cut rock of the Stooges and Loop as the -space-drone-duh-fug-weeee! stuff from paragraph one. We're lucky for that, -to keep the groove 'n' attack rooted in the gritty dirt-under-the-nails reality of rock as-fucking-rock is a move yielding a shit load of riches. Christ how much can it cost to book these guys? Apparently this is a reish of a double rec. and there's gotta be more and now I have to start looking for it. The power and punch comes so close to one of my three favorite rock moments ever, - Mission of Burma covering Pere Ubu's "heart of darkness", it makes me car crashingly crazy.

Pack it with F/i, Farflung, The First Band from Outer Space, Earthless, Paul Chain, Helios Creed, early Can, Joy Division, early PiL, Savage Republic, Red Giant, Crawlspace, Minsk, Afflicted Man, Cul de Sac, and Acid Mothers Temple for the best bongload ever. I love the record I have which is 'flashing open'. I like it because it reminds me a lot of all the noise records from the early 80s. Where every track is real different and sonically dense but still kind of fun.

I'll have to get some more, but this band is great.

i really cant describe the album other than how i did. its very diverse, and i know that way vague, but you know me... anyway its certainly ripping at times,and i think if you enjoy a good old sonic barrage made by total freaks, this is for you and look the hell out for the next album. theyve require a new guitar player, and he has some chops! they may have even recorded another album after that too. very prolific and yeah, our washboard player is their drummer

Good Gawd MH8! Can there be a collection of names better set to make me drool? If so, I'd like to know what they are.

Reviewers note: All of these comparisons served the necessary function of piquing my curiosity, ultimately resulting in a purchase. This review did its job.

NOW PLAYING: Tool - 10,000 Days

everytime someone puts F/i in a list, it makes me feel like I come from an important town. You can ref Die Kreutzen if you want to too.
