CD Review: Terror - CBGB Masters: Live June 10, 2004 The Bowery Collection

Terror - CBGB Masters: Live June 10, 2004 The Bowery Collection

2008 MVD Audio

Often you'll hear veteran punks and metalheads who lived in the New York region wax about the matinee punk and hardcore shows on Sundays at CBGB's and certainly the names you hear coming out of their mouths like Youth of Today, Bad Brains, Agnostic Front and Gorilla Biscuits lend an air of envy to those never in attendance of such legendary performances at America's lost hellhole club extraordinaire.

Though the year of this show by hardcore revivalists Terror captured for CBGB posterity is 2004 and hardly the vintage air of those eighties hardcore mission statements, what resonates through the bulldog rasps of Scott Vogel (enjoying an obvious homecoming moment) and the massive thrash attack of the LA-based band is that Terror recognizes the history of their venue and they go for it balls-out as if the year is 1987.

They buzzsaw through a destructo-agro set of songs like "Better Off Without You," "Keep Your Mouth Shut," "Life and Death" and "What Have We Done?" and unlike most live recordings, you feel a sense of being there because Terror is simply abusive through their relentless riffing and crushing beats amidst their professions of positivity. You can feel Terror slipping out a Bad Brains homage in tone on "Not This Time" while going absolutely berserk towards the end of the set on "Keep Your Distance" and "Push it Away."
