

Johnny Thunders
"Who's Been Talking? In Concert" (MVD Visual)
by Paul Autry

The bottom of the DVD cover mentions that this is rare live footage from the last recorded concert. Okay, so, it's rare. That's a good thing. But, the footage itself looks like it came from a VHS tape that was going bad. It had a slight blur to it and, in a few places, the camera work was simply horrible. It almost has a feel of a bootleg tape. With that in mind, you think whoever put this release together might have included some bonus features. Instead, it's just the concert performance. Well, there is a Johnny Thunders bio on the disc. Most people are already aware of his musical history. So, that seems a bit pointless. I think there's also a song or two missing from this performance. I don't remember hearing "Wipe Out" or "Gloria," which are listed on the back. Still, there's about 20 songs on here, has a run time of 99 minutes. So, I guess you can't really complain if you're a fan. But, I think some people might have a complaint or two about the quality. Then again, if this is the only footage of this show, which was filmed in Osaka, Japan, you've gotta take what you can. Might wanna pass on this if you're just a casual fan.
