

★★★★½

Ratatouille

Anyone can cook - even cartoon rats

Pixar

Rats cooking soup is anything but appetizing, unless it's a Pixar Parisian rat named Remy (Patton Oswalt). This culinary tale delights - even as it gets too gross when a horde of rodents overruns the kitchen.

LESLEY SAVAGE

★★★★½

AC/DC Plug Me In

Thirty years of headbanging

Columbia

A concert anthology that's divided into two discs: one for the Bon Scott era and the other for Brian Johnson's tenure. The footage quality is scatter-shot, but there's no denying the primal power of AC/DC.

KEVIN O'DONNELL

★★★½

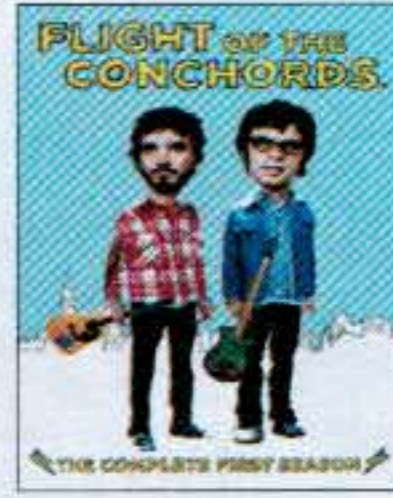

20 to Life

Rock's most radical manager

MVD

This time capsule on the activist/MC5 manager John Sinclair has great footage but is a tad too mild for a man who advocated an "assault on culture by any means necessary, including rock & roll, dope and fucking in the streets."

P.K.

★★★★½

Flight of the Conchords

Kiwi duo bring the funny to folk

Warner

Life in the Big Apple is a comedy of errors for Jemaine and Bret, but at least New Zealand's snarkiest exports find comic fuel to sing about their bad jobs, worse love lives and David Bowie.

NICOLE FREHSÉE