Vader - And Blood Was Shed In Warsaw

Eastern Europe's finest proponents of extreme metal get visualistic

OK, so I may be one of the moaniest reviewers ever when it comes to metal, that I'll hold my hands up to. In my defence, this is largely because a) I love great music, b) I hate bad music, c) there's far too much metal about and d) the overwhelming majority of it is being made without passion, soul, style or any sense of originality.

That said, though, there's always room for any band who makes any kind of music, as long as they inject it with passion and something of their own, something different from the faceless hordes who haunt me in my dreams. Such a (rare) band are Vader, probably the first band from Eastern Europe to ever get an international release and still one of the best, most furious and most articulate death metal outfits in the world, as this new DVD ably demonstrates.

As well as the now-standard 20 song live show, you get a respectable 2 music videos, plus the usual interviews, discography and photo gallery (note for the next DVD – listing weblinks and the animated menu as legitimate extras sounds both desperate and cheap – you're better than that guys!). All in all, it's a pretty decent package and one which should appeal to any serious fan of extreme metal.
