iCrusher Complete

Morbid Angel, Godflesh, Cathedral, Napalm Death, Entombed, Carcass, Ultraviolence
As brutal as self-administered sphincter surgery. With a stapler.

For almost as long as your faithful reviewer has stalked this planet of ours, Earache Records have been releasing records which consistently push back the boundaries of just what you can and can't do in the pursuit of heavy, fast (or sometimes slow) and brutal music. The label has come a hell of a long way since Digby Pearson got a grant from the dole to expand his badge-making business into a label, and have been responsible for launching or contributing to the careers of an impressive catalogue of bands including Napalm Death, Carcass, Godflesh, Fear Factory, Pitch Shifter and Cult Of Luna.

In celebration of their achievements, then, the label is issuing this new double-sided DVD, a compilation of the two prior iCrusher compilations. It features, among many others, promo videos from the likes of Mortiis, Godflesh and The Haunted, and live footage from Cathedral, Carcass and Napalm Death.

Frankly, if you're not a fan of the labels' output, you aren't likely to be impressed, but then they're not really trying to sell it to you, are they? Established fans, though, should be salivating already, especially if you didn't get the original issues of iCrusher – there's enough extreme metal action on here to have your ears throbbing for weeks.
