Metalmania 2007

Entombed, Destruction, Blaze Bayley, Sepultura, Paradise Lost, Testament
Metal as food!

Well the massed forces of Metal are perhaps being a little late on this one, given that I'm reviewing it on the cusp of March 2008, but nonetheless they are releasing the DVD / CD multipack (lick my value for money!) of the Metalmania 2007 festival held almost a year ago all the way over there in Poland.

Featuring a veritable cavalcade of rocks' heaviest, loudest, fastest, hardest, baldest and fattest, in the grand scheme of things this is approximately as metal as being drowned in pig iron while wearing a suit of armour with your knickers full of ball bearings; or approximately twice as metal as being run over by a tank driven by Rob Halford and three-quarters of Slayer (I'm mixing my metaphors, my drinks and my drugs here, but you know what I mean...) This is at least in part due to the presence of bands of the calibre of Entombed, Blaze Bayley, Sepultura, Paradise Lost and Testament all over the DVD (the CD featuring the less familiar but no-less-metal likes of Benediction, Forever Will Burn and Root, along with the rest of the second-stage acts).

However, given the profiles of the bands involved, you're likely to be primarily interested in the contents of the DVD. An excellent sound and multi-camera setup ensures that the recording of both sound and film is of the highest possible standard; as you'd expect the performances are frighteningly tight, Blaze Bayley is entertainingly fat and overall Metal Mania 2007 is absolutely the best metal concert DVD release of the week. Hurrah!
