Shawn Mullins - Live At The Variety Playhouse

I've seen Shawn Mullins at the Aladdin Theatre twice before - once with his own band and once as part of The Thorns, but I unfortunately missed his latest gig this past Sunday night. That's okay though - I picked up an advanced copy of Shawn's new concert DVD instead.

The disc highlights one of the Georgia native's late 2007 performances at Atlanta's Variety Playhouse. The first half of the performance features Shawn going the solo/acoustic route and he is joined by his full band for the second half.

One of my favorite tracks, "Twin Rocks, OR", starts off the show. From there, the set list leans heavily on Shawn's last two releases "Honeydew" and "9th Ward Pickin' Parlor". A few of Shawn's classics ("Shimmer" and "Lullaby") are included too along with an amazing version of "House Of The Rising Sun".

The DVD hits store shelves on October 28th. I highly encourage you to pick up a copy. Shawn's an amazing artist whose style, voice and lyrical story-telling is on par with some of the great singer/song-writers.
