The two 1968 performances presented here feature Basie (piano) plus musicians like Eddie "Lockjaw" Davis, Marshall Royal and Harold Jones playing classic songs like "All of Me," "On a Clear Day," "Cherokee," "One O'clock Jump" along with swinging instrumental workouts like "Hittin' Twelve," "Blues for Ilean," "A Night in Tunisia," "Whirly-Bird," and "The Magic Flea."

Coleman Hawkins was "the true originator of the tenor saxophone as a solo instrument in jazz."

His small groups on this 2/10 DVD contain major jazz figures like Harry Edison, Benny Carter, Teddy Wilson, Oscar Peterson and Roy Eldridge. Some footage appears on DVD for the first time ever. Other concerts have never been issued in such good quality.

Highlights include drum spotlights by Jo Jones and Louie Bellson, plus superlative sax melodies on such classics as "September Song," "Willow Weep for Me" and "Body and Soul."

Jazz fans will really enjoy these two swinging DVDs showcasing many of the music's greats.
