

if the music's loud enough...

music, musings and miscellanea

- Home
- The Skinny

DVD Review: Metal Machine Music - Nine Inch Nails and the Industrial Uprising

Some would argue that trying to give a complete history of a musical genre is next to impossible. Others would say framing a genre through the lens of one band is just stupid. But that's not stopping the makers of Metal Machine Music: Nine Inch Nails and the Industrial Uprising, which tries to accomplish both at once. The film begins with a brief but informative history of industrial music from its '70s art-rock beginnings up through its fusion with dance and metal cultures in the '80s. Heavy emphasis is rightfully placed on Throbbing Gristle, whose singer (Genesis P-Orridge) is included in the film's small number of interview subjects, and Ministry, whose Al Jourgensen is not. Focus quickly shifts however to Nine Inch Nails, who as far as the filmmakers are concerned, are the be all and end all of the genre — save a brief mention of '90s NIN-aping acts Stabbing Westward and Filter, the history of industrial music stops with them. It should come as a shock to no one with even a modicum of knowledge about Nine Inch Nails that Trent Reznor didn't authorize this doc; he being a notorious control freak. So immediately we're denied any sort of definitive account of Nine Inch Nails' rise to stardom since the main dude involved is conspicuously absent. The filmmakers manage to dig up former band-mates Chris Vrenna and Richard Patrick, who offer the only first-hand accounts in the film. The rest of the critical analysis is given by music media types, including Toronto's own Alan Cross. An extended interview with Genesis P-Orridge is included in the package, as are a handful of other extended interviews. But save for a rental out of curiosity, this one's better left alone until Reznor decides on his own legacy.

This review originally appeared at Exclaim.ca

Nine Inch Nails - "Perfect Drug"

Stabbing Westward - "Save Yourself"

Possibly related posts: (automatically generated)

- Nine Inch Nails
- Trent Reznor Trashes Chris Cornell's New Album
- TopSpin Lets Bands Ape Radiohead, Nine Inch Nails

March 26, 2009 - Posted by gormsey | DVD Review, Reviews | 102.1 The Edge, Al Jourgensen, Alan Cross, Chris Vrenna, Documentary, DVD, Filter, Genesis P-Orridge, Industrial, Lost Highway, Lou Reed, Metal

Machine Music: Nine Inch Nails and the Industrial Uprising, Ministry, music, Nine Inch Nails, Richard Patrick, Save Yourself, Stabbing Westward, The Perfect Drug, Throbbing Gristle, Trent Reznor | No Comments

No comments yet.

Leave a comment

Name

e-Maile-Mail

Website

Notify me of follow-up comments via email.

« Previous | Next »

The Skinny

“if the music’s loud enough...” is a blog about music and all the baggage that comes with it (generally a certain level of geekdom). In my day to day life I’m a journalist (ie: paid writer) and a lot of the content here is stuff I wrote for other publications and websites complete with real interviews with gasp actual rock stars (!). I've got a journalism degree from the University of King's College in Halifax (although I'm originally from Vancouver) which let's me do that sort of thing (though if you don't have one you shouldn't let that stop you). I'm now writing for a pair of music mags in Toronto. The rest of the site is made up of me posting and commenting on stuff I like, want to make fun of or that I find just plain infuriating. I'm actually pretty lazy, and not as "with it" as I was in my youth (27 is the new underage!?!)) so this won't be teeming with the most cutting edge, got it before anyone else content. But it will be good, except where applicable. If you want to get in touch with me or want to send me free stuff (it could happen...) drop me, Ian Gormely, a note at ifthemusicsloudehough@gmail.com. Enjoi and play nice kids...

-

• New Stuff

- Live Review: Junior Boys & Max Tundra @ Mod Club, 03/30/09
- Weerez! Weezer live in San Francisco, March 17, 2001
- Live Review: Wavves w/Vampire Hands & The Bitters @ Sneaky Dee's
- Record Review: Yeah Yeah Yeahs - "It's Blitz"
- New Eels - "Fresh Blood"

• Check it...

- Acephale Records
- Aquarium Drunkard
- Canadian Soccer Blog
- Chartattack
- Exclaim!
- EYE WEEKLY
- Gorilla VS. Bear
- if the music's loud enough Facebook page