

Although I didn't fall out of my seat rolling on the floor laughing, I did find myself laughing out loud at times. Adam is refreshingly funny like with his bit on "Myspace, Facebook and Twatter" "I cant keep up with the Myspace Facebook Twatter Twitter whatever the hell that is, they should combine em'. My twat face". He's good but near the end of the cd he trails off just a little bit instead of tearing the house down.

Overall its still good listening even if sometimes he could be a little stingingly sharp witted with his racial material... never the less, its pretty good.
