I'M NOT BUYING NO NEW TRUMP BIBLE

I couldn't believe it when I heard Donald Trump announced he was selling a product called the "God Bless the USA Bible". A friend of mine told me, this is the only Bible endorsed by Trump as if that's supposed to get me to buy one. I wish Trump would stop doing stupid things. He's starting to sound like one of those many televangelists selling God on TV. These characters urge their congregations to send them your hard-earned money and God will make you richer in return.

Trump needs to stay in his own political lane. He's not a preacher, he's a politician. No good ever comes from mixing these two things up.

HERE COMES THE 7 DOLLAR TREE STORE

The Dollar Tree Store a few years back raised their base price to $1.25 and then little by little some items started raising pricing even higher. Now, I heard the Dollar Tree Store is going up on prices even higher. Soon, prices on most items will go up to $7. SEVEN DOLLARS! Don't know about you but that's a bit too high for mostly Imported Chinese junk-stuff.

HEART & SOUL SIRIUS XM ANOTHER GOOD R&B SOUND

Heart & Soul Sirius XM 47 plays some great R&B, both yesterday and today stuff. I just heard Brian McKnight doing his hit "Used to be My Girl." Also, this morning on the way into work on the same Sirius channel I heard "Slowly" by Tank and Eric Robinson singing his hit tune "YOU." These could all turn into tomorrow's Classic R&B.

Enjoy and Protect Hydrangeas from Hungry Deer

by Melinda Myers

Low maintenance, beautiful flowers, and plenty of varieties have made hydrangeas a favorite landscape plant. It seems you can't visit a garden center or nursery without being tempted by one of the traditional favorites or newer hydrangea varieties.

Despite their easy-care nature, hungry deer can make it difficult to fully enjoy these plants. Rutgers University rates landscape plants based on their susceptibility to deer damage. According to Rutgers, hydrangeas are occasionally severely damaged by deer, meaning they are a plant preferred by deer and protection is advised. Your experience may be different and can vary from year to year, but it is always wise to be prepared to protect key plants in your landscape.

Deer like to browse leaves, tender shoots, flower buds, and blossoms. Damage is worse when populations are high, food is scarce, and when environmental stresses like cold and deep snow are present. Once deer find a place to dine, they tend to return. Their damage has a rough or torn appearance as opposed to a clean cut like that made by a pruner. Preventing damage is always the best way to maximize your enjoyment. Even if your plants have escaped damage in the past, continue to watch for deer tracks, droppings, and plant damage.

Fencing is one option but not always the most attractive or practical. An eight-foot fence is the recommended height for protecting large areas. The University of Minnesota found deer can be kept out of small gardens that are 8 x 16 feet or smaller with much shorter fences. Sturdy decorative posts and somewhat invisible deer fencing tend to make a less obtrusive fence. Always check with your local municipality for any fencing restrictions.

Many gardeners report success using high-test fishing line. Create a barrier using strong five-foot posts with the fishing line spaced at two-foot intervals. Scare tactics may provide some short-term help. Motion-sensitive sprinklers, noise makers, and smells are often used. Several gardeners reported success placing colorful wine bottles inverted over rebar posts. The rattling helped discourage deer browsing and added an ornamental element to the garden. Change scare tactics to increase success.

Place key plants closer to your home, in the back of large beds, or surrounded by less susceptible plants. Making it hard to reach the plants can help discourage damage to hydrangeas.

Repellents are another option. Treat susceptible plants before the deer start browsing for the best results. Look for a rain and snow-resistant product, like organic Plantskydd (plantskydd.com), which does not need to be reapplied as often. That means you'll save time applying and spend less money.

Maximize results by treating new growth according to the label directions. Most liquid repellents need time to dry and can only be applied when temperatures are above freezing. Always check the label for the product being applied and follow the directions for the best results.

Continue to monitor the landscape for signs of deer presence and damage and adjust your management strategies as needed. Be persistent so you can increase your success.
