Wisdom In Chains - S/T

Wisdom In Chains was started a couple of years ago when Krutch was on tour in Europe. Mad Joe and Richie ran into this guy called Maarten from Holland who played in Daredevil and decided that it would be a fun idea to start an old school band heavy on Oi! and street influences. They went in the studio, recorded an album and released it on Gangstyle.

Due to the distance between its members, Wisdom In Chains never got to play more than one show until Maarten told them to find local members and keep the band going in the States. Mad Joe and Richie found these in The Ninth Plague's Tony Meltdown, Out To Win's Shannon Sparky and Big Show Greg. And there ya go, that brings us to today and to the re-release of their self-titled album on Universal Warning Records.

The recordings on this one are pretty raw and in your face which suits the fast and pissed off songs perfectly. Things are unexpectedly catchy though and there's plenty of chances to sing along over the buzzing guitars. Nice job!

Score: 7 out of 10

ABOUT PUNKROCKTHEORY.COM

PunkRockTheory.com is an online zine that has been around for seven years. We still love to force our elitist opinions on people and ask bands the dumbest things first. We currently have twelve restraining orders running against us and we are working on lucky number thirteen!

Recently our server crashed and we lost everything, including our whole database. Since work on the new site is taking a bit longer than expected, we're using this blog for now to post all the latest reviews and interviews.

We hope that's fine with you.
