Wednesday 13 – Bloodwork CD (DR2)

Beyond the Murderdolls—whom I have always found quite entertaining—I haven't listened to much of Wednesday 13's recordings, though I know he is extremely prolific. For those not in the know, he specializes in an aggressive glam-punk-industrial hybrid... a kind-of Rob Zombie in lipstick, if you will, and he's damn good at what he does. 'Bloodwork' is a solid effort, though his cover of Tom Petty's 'Runnin' Down A Dream' has me scratching my head a bit, as I have a deep love for the original and can't quite decide if I can truly get behind his Ministry-izing of such a pure, meaningful slice of Americana. At the end of the day, what really matters is that this album speaks to a definite segment of disaffected youth who'll eat it up with glee—and be better off for it. The Impaler
