

Gothkill

This low budget horror flick probably means a lot more to the friends and family who helped director JJ Connelly get it made, but it still has a gritty style to it that makes it worth seeing.

Performance artist Flambeaux stars as Nick Dread, a disciple of the devil who needs to collect 100,000 souls to enter the kingdom of hell. He reaches his quota one night at a New York Goth bar, but soon discovers why making a deal with the devil is never a good idea. 2½ stars