Yes, if the cult-hit Season One DVD wasn't proof enough then Season Two should erase any reasonable doubts - Puppets Who Kill is the nastiest little show around. The strangely demented antics of Buttons, Rocko, Cuddles and Bill return to torment Dan Redican, the social worker under siege at the half-way house he manages for the fearsome foursome, all of whom are incorrigible sociopaths. How's this for a heart-warming episode: Bill hires a litigator to sue the families of the people he's murdered...for emotional damages. And on it goes, thirteen episodes as far away from Jim Henson as you can get featuring everything from necrophilia to serial killing. For fun.

You've got to see this show, and maybe you'll get lucky and score one of the three copies we've got for you here at B-D. To enter put PUPPETS WHO KILL in the subject line and E-mail me the following info:
