RANDY SABIEN

LIVE IN MINNEAPOLIS

This incredible Randy Sabien performance was recorded live during The Independence Day Weekend, Main Street Jazz Festival 1986 in Minneapolis and features Pat Donahue on Guitar.

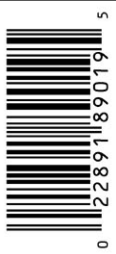

Sabien's rhythmic, bluesy, swingin' sound will have you bobbing your head, tapping your toes and dancing right out of your chair. His musical aspirations began with classical violin, but soon switched gears the day he discovered he could play jazz on it.

The DVD also includes a Bonus Program entitled "Jazz, What It Is" where Sabien and his quartet use visual metaphors, such as, humorously comparing Improvisation to football or Swing to jumping rope, in an effort to get viewers to understand what jazz really is.

Jazz violinists usually draw from one of two traditions. The best of both can be found in the superb Randy Sabien... he combines classical technique and folk energy in a program that's still strictly jazz.
