

THEY WERE DEAD BROKE, BUT THEY HAD THE ANSWERS!

"An endlessly charming look at one of the only purely American art forms –the humble game show." – Ken Jennings, Jeopardy! Champion, TV Host

He was a history teacher. She was a children's author. Together, Bernard and Claire Boiko of Queens, NY were the dead-broke parents of five children. A pair of curiously relatable outsiders, they captured American hearts and saved their family by doing it. Yes! They appeared on TV game shows 28 times over 37 years.

From Tic-Tac-Dough (1956), Now You See It, Concentration, Jeopardy!, The Match Game, To Tell the Truth right up to Trivial Pursuit (1993), the Boiko's competed on national television and quite possibly hold the record for individual TV game show appearances by husband and wife.

Narrated by their daughter, Patricia, Game Show Dynamos is an all-American story of family, commitment, challenges and a life-long run at the American dream.

A TRUE SLICE OF APPLE PIE, GAME SHOW DYNAMOS WILL LIFT YOUR SPIRITS AND BREAK YOUR HEARTS IN ONE LIGHTNING ROUND OF PURE ENTERTAINMENT.
