"Rising stars"

—BROOKLYN VEGAN

"They make debauchery and estrangement so glamorous. The songs are as catchy as a radio pop jam, but throw off the trappings of plastic pop and wrap you in fur, folk, and the last drops of moonlight."

—LA RECORD

"It's always a home run when a band is able to generate such bouncy hipster-folk, and this The Mamas and The Papas-meets-Timbuk 3-sounding set offers a fine selection. Rocking harmonicas, proto-punk wailing, hippie clothes, fun drums, easy riffs... it's a redux of the personality that made the Woodstock era so much fun for Hollywood directors"

—METRO MIX NEW YORK

"Forward thinking folkies forging new ground."

He's My Brother She's My Sister

seem to invite a broad range of colorful words to describe their music and performances: "flamboyant folk," "psych-acoustic," "estranged and glamorous" and "vaudeville-y." No doubt this is due to their mélange of musical styles, both modern and antique; their eccentric attire and sense of expression, both sincere and theatrical; and, their unique instrumentation, which includes a rhythm section bolstered by a tap dancer.

Brother and sister Robert Kolar and Rachel Kolar split vocal duties, with Robert on guitar and kick drum and Rachel on tambourine. Their voices range from boisterous to introspective, from breezy to emotive. Lauren Brown adds full-body percussion with her fluid tap-dancing and drumming. Oliver Newell adds stand up bass with joyous flair. Aaron Robinson plays lead guitar on a lap slide, veering from nuanced psychedelica to American roots riffs.

The band has performed at the Sundance Film Festival, SXSW Festival, High Sierra Music Festival. Manimal Vinyl Festival, Clean Air Clear Stars, The New Los Angeles Folk Festival, The North Park Music Festival and toured Europe as the official band of the Karlovy Vary International Film Festival. They have shared the stage with Fitz and the Tantrums, The Devil Makes Three, Spindrift, Miranda Lee Richards, The Knitters, The Growlers, Local Natives, Frank Fairfield, Alexander Ebert, and Edward Sharpe & The Magnetic Zeros.
