THE ROLLING STONES

UNDER REVIEW 1962 - 1966

This 90-minute film reviews the music and career of one of rock music's true giants during their formative years. The documentary includes rare musical performances never before available on DVD, and obscure footage such as rare interviews and private photographs of and with band members.

There is also review, comment, criticism and insight from: esteemed former Melody Maker journalist and early Stones champion, Chris Welch; former NME editor in the 1960s and friend of the band, Keith Altham; the Stones bodyguard and driver throughout the period of this film, Tom Keylock; 1960s RnB vocalist and colleague of the group, Chris Farlowe; original Rolling Stones member and Pretty Things guitarist Dick Taylor and many others besides.

Live and studio recordings of Stones' classics, including Satisfaction, The Last Time, Not Fade Away, Little Red Rooster, Come On and many others.
