JOE JAMMER was named by ROBERT PLANT when he started working for LEZ ZEPPLIN in the early 70's in USA as JIMMY PAGE's guitar tech. So impressed were LED ZEPPLIN that they recommend to their manager PETER GRANT that he manage young Joe and he promptly; signed him up and shipped him from Chicago to the UK where he recorded his first solo album "Bad News" which was released on the infamous Regal Zonophone label in 1973. Joe then assembled a stellar cast of musicians to record his second solo album at Olympic Studios London in 1974 which included MITCH MITCHELL (drums-Jimi Hendrix Experience), JOHN GUSTAFSON (bass-Big Three, Roxy Music, Hard Stuff/Pirates), JOHNNY COMMAND (vocals-Sha Na Na) and recorded a stunning ground breaking rock album. However because Joe lived in USA and Regal were undergoing a re organisation Joe was ultimately dropped from the label and the album was never released until now.
